

MALE SPEAKER 1: Okay.

CALLUM TULLEY: An officer -- one of the officers I was with, Dan, said to John, "What about the cameras?" Sorry, mate, I'll try that again.

One of the officers I was with, Dan, said to John, you know, "What about those cameras?" And John replied, saying he was going to scrub it clean.

Oh, that's not what he fucking -- sorry, I'm quoting him, aren't I, by saying that? I'll try again.

One of the officers I was with, Dan, said to John, "What about the cameras?" And John, in his own words, said he was going to scrub the footage, which basically means delete it, cover up what was going to happen to that detainee.

I'm confident that if John got this detainee into that corner, that he would have battered him, basically. I've got no doubt about it. He was speaking with such conviction, and he's known within the centre for being heavy handed. I've seen him at work before, and the way he treats detainees. And I had every confidence that he really would give that detainee a pasting, had he got him into the corner.

So, I suppose -- yeah, I mean, so.

MALE SPEAKER 1: Do you want to do that one again?

CALLUM TULLEY: Yeah.
